right up towards the empyrean, and then suddenly gets out of breath and flutters, or tumbles, to earth again. You wish they would do their flying in private until they have learned to stay on the wing long enough really to arrive somewhere. But all this notwithstanding, the Aristotelian Society is an answer to those who think philosophy is losing its hold on the minds of men; and the country that can produce philosophizing so good may hope from time to time, in the future as in the past, to produce philosophizing that is still better.

JOURNALS AND NEW BOOKS.

THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF PSYCHOLOGY. April, 1918. The Effect of Auditory Distraction upon the Sensory Reaction (pp. 129–143) : EDNA E. CASSEL and K. M. DELLANBACH.—Distractions may inhibit, lengthen, facilitate or shorten the reaction. Continuous distractions are easily habituated, while intermittent distractions have a more profound effect on the sensory reaction time. A Medium in the Bud (pp. 144–158) : G. STANLEY HALL.—The story of a girl who believed she could commune with the spirit world is told. Her plan turned out to be an attempt to win back a lover. This article is an interesting study in adolescent imagination. A Psycho-Analytic Study of Auguste Comte (pp. 159–181) : PHYLLIS BLANCHARD.—Comte possessed a strong egoism. This arrogant self-confidence was later softened by his love for Clotilde de Vaux. His writings clearly reflect these influences. Bibliography. On “Retiring” and “Advancing” Colors (pp. 182–186) : M. LUCKIESH.—Blue as a rule seems to retire while red advances. A Note on Association Time and Feeling (pp. 187–195) : E. C. TOLMAN and ISABELLE JOHNSON.—Simple unpleasant sense qualities lengthen association-times. This effect is more marked in women than in men. Prolonged Infancy—Its Cause and Its Significance (pp. 196–203) : MAX SCHOEN.—Learning and dependence are different qualities and are not necessarily related. An Objective Measure of Attributive Clearness (pp. 204–207) : EDNA E. CASSEL and K. M. DALLENBACH.—A single observer finds that attributive clearness may be measured by the average duration and variation of the sensory reaction. What is Introspection? (pp. 208–213) : STEPHEN C. PEPPER.—Introspection is anything that comes along, while in the objective methods the data is picked. A Bibliography of Rhythm (pp. 214–218) : CHRISTIAN A. RUCKMICH.—Second supplementary list. Minor Studies from the Psychological Laboratory of Cornell University. On the Calculation of an Associative Limen (pp. 219–226) : H. D. WILLIAMS.—The mnemometric function is the phi-function of gamma, and the effective condition of association varies with the logarithm of the number of repetitions. An Analysis of the Psychometric Function Two-Point Limen with Respect to the Paradoxical Error (pp. 227-232): MARGARET KINCAID.—An analysis indicates the operation of two antagonistic factors. Book Notes: John Edgar Coover, Experiments in Psychical Research at Leland Stanford University.
